

- THE CANADIAN INTELLIGENCE SERVICE, a monthly report dealing with every aspect of the world revolutionizing movement. Considered one of the best in the English speaking world. Rates (Canada & USA): second class mail - $5 a year; first class mail - $9 a year. Overseas by air mail only - $11 a year.

- ON TARGET, a weekly review of major world events and background information, with an emphasis on the complex political economic scene. Rates: second class mail - $7 (or $10 a year) - one year - $12. First class mail (Canada & USA) - one year - $10. Overseas by air mail only - $20 a year.

- THE NEW TIMES, a monthly publication of the League, dealing with every aspect of world revolution. Features reports and articles on economic and social conditions. Published in English. Rates: $10 a year.

— League of Nations Publications —

Great progress in realizing the principles of peace and justice is being made through the private-enterprise system of production and distribution of goods and services. But we must not lose sight of the fact that the world's population will have to be fed and clothed and housed and educated and employed and cared for by a Government. It is therefore essential for the League to discharge its responsibility.

The Canadian League Of Rights

- Objectives
- Brief History
- Publications

MEMBERSHIP
1965
Publications (1964)

BRITISH COLUMBIA
1000
1000
1000

ONTARIO
1000
1000
1000

ALBERTA
Box 51,
Brooks,
Albany,
1000

MANITOBA
Box 51,
St. James St.,
Winnipeg, Man.,
R2H 1L4

The objectives of the League

The Canadian League of Rights is a free association or movement of Canadians dedicated to the preservation of freedom and justice in Canada, and the defence of our Christian heritage. Members of the League pledge themselves to further the following aims and objectives:

- To promote loyalty to God, Family and Country.
- To defend our constitutional monarchy and Christian heritage.
- To work for the restoration of more responsible parliamentary government, and to oppose government-by-regulation.
- To encourage personal responsibility and individual initiative as essential to the preservation and expansion of personal freedom.
- To oppose monopoly, centralized power and bureaucracy in government and in every sphere of national life.
- To uphold national sovereignty and the ties of the Commonwealth, and to expose all forces operating against them.
- To strive for a genuine association of free and sovereign nations, co-operating for the wellbeing of all peoples.
- To oppose and expose every form of totalitarianism — be it 'Nazism,' 'Communism,' or any other 'ism.'

MEMBERS of the Canadian League of Rights:—

- REJECT the materialistic concept that the individual can do nothing, that he is but flotsam drifting on the sea of history;
- BELIEVE that the individual does count; and justice
- BELIEVE that the individual, calling upon God's grace and guidance, can be more than a helpless victim of circumstance; that the individual, working in association with others of faith and courage — the dedicated minority — can help to shape and mould history, and make a constructive contribution to the future of this country.

CONCERNING GOVERNMENT: "It is not the legitimate role of government to do for people what they can and should do for themselves. The prime role of government should be to maintain law and order and the general conditions which encourage the exercise of personal initiative and responsibility by the people in looking after their own welfare."

—Ron Gostick, National Director of the C.L.R.

BRIEF HISTORY OF THE LEAGUE

Ron Gostick, upon his discharge from the armed forces in 1946, became engaged in the publishing field. By 1950, he had launched The Canadian Intelligence Service, a monthly report published continually since that time. Seventeen years later, in 1967, Canadian Intelligence Publications responded to a growing demand for up-to-the-minute information respecting national and world developments by launching the weekly On Target report. And it was primarily out of the readership of these publications that the Canadian League of Rights was born and developed.

Readers of these journals increasingly felt that it was not enough to merely be informed — they wanted to "do something." And it was in response to this grassroots feeling and need that the League was formed in 1968 under the national direction of Ron Gostick.

The League is designed to serve as a vehicle to assist people to get involved in public affairs and the political life of our nation, but outside and beyond the narrow bounds of party politics.

The Canadian League of Rights is the only organization in Canada fighting totalitarianism (centralization of power) at all levels. And it has developed an effective liaison with anti-Marxist organizations throughout the free world, sharing knowledge and experience with others who are battling to defeat the Communist challenge. Through Canadian Intelligence publications and literature, the League strives to benefit as a service which is essential for our survival as a free people.

The League does far more than merely oppose and expose all threats to individual freedom; it also holds in its vision of a world that could be one of total freedom and security for all, in which every individual could participate freely in association with his fellows to build the finest civilization yet created by man inspired by God. The League is a voluntary body of dedicated and individual men and women who are concerned not so much with the seeking after some petty material gain, but as the custodians of those truths and values which must be the basis of all successful effort to defeat the enemies of human dignity and freedom. The League is a new type of organization, offering an opportunity for service to those who want to do something useful and purposeful with their lives in opposition to those who seek to drive man down the slope of existence and to deny him his divine destiny.

The League of Rights concept is now rooted and expanding around the English-speaking world. There are Leagues in Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and the United Kingdom; also a Crown Commonwealth association of these Leagues.